

We wish to acknowledge the substantial contributions of Kathy Hill during her tenure as Managing Editor of the Journal of the Experimental Analysis of Behavior beginning with the May, 1987 issue and continuing through the November 2002 issue. She recently resigned her position with JEAB to assume the role of Business Manager of the Journal of Applied Behavior Analysis. During her tenure as Managing Editor of JEAB, Kathy processed every article, note, comment, and editorial published in the journal, reviewing each with her careful eye, keen sense of style, and good ear for the English language. She demonstrated a remarkable blend of efficiency and accuracy. Kathy not only is a master of those complex technical aspects of her task, but also of the considerable interpersonal skills and patience required in dealing with editors and authors alike. She has been flexible but also appropriately firm as the circumstances have dictated. She has helped each of us maintain the high standards of style and substance that our discipline expects of JEAB. On behalf of the entire community of scholars involved in JEAB, we thank her for her contributions to our journal and wish her the best in her new role in support of our discipline.

Philip N. Himeline (Editor, 1983–1987)

Edmund Fantino (Editor, 1987–1991)

Marc Branch (Editor, 1991–1995)

Richard L. Shull (Editor, 1995–1999)

Kennon A. Lattal (Editor, 1999–2003)